WINTER STORMS AND CHINA CONSTANTLY CHANGING ITS MIND HELPS GRAIN COMPLEX TO MOVE HIGHER LATELY.

Lower closes for Minneapolis, Kansas City and Chicago wheat along with rough rice, corn soybeans, soybean meal and soybean oil. FUNDAMENTALLY, EARLY WINTER STORMS HAVE HELPED THE GRAINS RALLY SINCE MY LAST REPORT ALONG WITH CHINA CHANGING ITS MIND CONSISTENTLY BACK AND FORTH CAUSING CHOPPY GRAIN MARKETS. WITH ALL OF THAT BEING SAID THE WHEAT COMPLEX ALONG WITH CORN, BEANS AND OIL ARE IN POSSIBLE BOTTOMING FORMATIONS LOOKING TO MOVE HIGHER. HARVESTING AND CROP CONDITIONS REMAIN BEHIND LAST YEAR ALSO GIVING SOME CREDENCE TO THE GRAINS RALLY. The wheat complex across the board looks to be in a possible bottoming formation also. Minneapolis still needs a close over 560, in my opinion, for continued verification while KC (BUY SIGNAL) had a breakout on Monday after roughly trading sideways over the last month. Chicago had its highest high and close since July on Monday closing over 506 which is good action for further advances. Oats just made a new CONTRACT HIGH before settling lower in REVERSAL TYPE ACTION. Good support remains around 285 while remaining bullish overall. Rough rice continued in a 1160 - 1240 range since June really not going anywhere yet. Just trade off the extremes of its trading range until it breaks out one way or the other. Corn also looks like it's in a possible bottoming formation making its best high and close on Monday since the middle of August. Bad weather along with China changing its tune back and forth has helped corn along with the rest of the grain complex rally lately. Soybeans and meal also seem to be in possible bottoming formations the former making its best high and close since the middle of June while the latter since the middle of July. The meal closing over 310 is also significant in my opinion. Oil continues to make higher highs and lows since early August with its highest high and close since March.
